Larch House by bere:architects

Half-day Seminar

Passivhaus: Principles and Examples

Venue   Bath Royal Literary and Scientific Institute, Queen Square, Bath
Date   18 January 2011
Time   1pm registration, 1.30 - 4.30pm Light refreshments provided
Cost   £50

What is the Passivhaus standard and how can it be achieved? This half day seminar will look at the principles and performance standards of Passivhaus and give practical guidance on the requirements for certification.

Confirmed speakers
Craig White, Director, White Design and ModCell
Craig White founded White Design, an award-winning architectural practice and sustainable consultancy in 1998. He is also a director of ModCell, an innovative cladding system using straw bale and hemp. Having taught, written and lectured widely on environmental design and construction, Craig is an advisor on several government initiatives.

Justin Bere Principal, Bere Architects
One of the UK's foremost Passivhaus practitioners, and winner of numerous design awards. Bere Architects have current projects in social housing, new build and retrofit.

Adam Graveley, Senior Consultant, BRE
The BRE were the first organisation to offer Passivhaus certification and consultancy in the UK. Through the Certified European Passivhaus Designer course they continue to expand the skills base in the UK required to design and certify buildings to the Passivhaus standard.

Paul Jennings Air Leakage Detailing & Awareness Services (ALDAS)
One of the UK's most respected air tightness testing specialists with 25 years of experience of advising on good design and how to avoid failures.

Sofie Pelsmaker, Programme Leader MA Architecture, University of East London
Software is the required package for designing a Passivhaus project, but on first sight can be intimidating. There will be an additional PHPP training session at the end of the event from approximately 4.30pm. Please contact Building Centre Events to register for this additional session

Book via The Building Centre website by clicking HERE
For venue details click HERE
CPD Certificates provided on request